

Knowth Macehead

The Knowth macehead is so beautifully carved that it must have been an extremely precious ceremonial object. Made of flint, it is generally considered to be the single finest piece of Neolithic craftwork in Western Europe. It measures 79mm in length, weighs 324.5gms and could be held in the palm of your hand! See if you can duplicate the intricate designs on the blank version provided.

---

Front view

Side view

